NO. 13.

THE TEMPEST.

He shall give his angels charge
Over thee in all thy ways.
Though the thunders roar at large,
Though the lightning round me plays,
Like a child I lay my head
In sweet sleep upon my bed.

Though the terror comes so close,
It shall have no power to smite;
It shall deepen my repose,
Turn the darkness into light.
Touch of angels' hands is sweet;
Not a stone shall hurt my feet.

All thy waves and billows go
Over me to press me down
Into arms so strong, I know
They will never let me drown.
Ah, my God, how good thy will!
I will nestle and be still.
—Alice Freeman Palmer.

THE RETURN

Philip Graham, coming to the end of long pages of blue parchment, folded them mechanically and tied them up with pink tape. He rang the bell on his desk.

"Simson," he said as his clerk entered, "ask Miss Kennet if she will please come to me."

A few moments later a girl entered the room.

"Miss Kennet," he said, "will you mind looking through some papers for me?"

He had risen to his feet, and a queer look flashed to his eyes. For an instant her lip quivered.

"Oh, why won't you forget that I was ever anything but your secretary?" she said.

He bit his lip.

"You know why," he said, half under his breath; "but I—I will not forget again."

He picked up his keys, and striding across the room unlocked a japanned tin box marked "D."

Gladys Kennet turned over the papers in the box. Her head was beginning to ache, but then it had ached many, many times since her father died—nearly two years ago, and she ought to have grown used to it now.

"WHY WON'T YOU FORGET?"

Her thoughts stopped abruptly with a shock.

She stared down wildly, with the color driving from her face.

She clutched a faded newspaper cutting with fingers growing cold.

"A marriage has been arranged, and will shortly take place, between Lieut. Reginald Lindley and Miss Gladys Kennet, only daughter of Col. Kennet of Ribstone hall."

The paper dropped to the floor. The lawyer's room, with its japanned tin boxes, whizzed wildly around her.

What mockery it had been! Only a few days after that paragraph had appeared her father had died, bankrupt, and she had been left penniless and alone. In less than a week Reginald had gone too, and if it had not been for Philip—Philip whom she had despised for being her father's solicitor—she would have been—what?

The sob in her throat refused to be choked back. Her heart beat up loudly, persistently, a drumming sounded in her ears, and her head dropped suddenly, sharply amongst the dusty papers.

Philip started quickly to his feet and ran across the room.

"Gladys—Miss Kennet!"

She tried to struggle to her feet.

"It is silly of me," she said unsteadily. "I—I ought to have forgotten by now."

He pushed her gently back and took her hands in his.

"Miss Kennet—Gladys—let me help you to forget," he said huskily. "You know I love you—you know I loved you long before—long before that happened."

She passed her hands across her eyes as though to clear them, and then looked into his.

"I don't know," she said in a whisper. "You have been so good to me that sometimes I think that if—I if I could be sure that Reginald would never come back I could love you as much—as I once loved him."

"Let me try to make you," he said eagerly. "Gladys, darling, if you can only give me half your heart I shall be content."

She put out her hands to him with her eyes full of tears.

"Look, Philip, look," she cried. She threw up the sack, and they both looked out on the busy market square.

"Look!" Gladys repeated. "It is the ring Reginald gave me, and I have done with him now forever."

She raised her arm and flung the ring from her far out in the square.

She turned to Philip breathless and white.

"I have done with him now forever," she whispered.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mrs. Marian Warner.

On Friday night, April 8th, Mrs. Marian Warner, a native of Vermont, passed away at her home at 1730 Chandler avenue. The only surviving members of her immediate family are a sister, Miss Amoret Higbee, now of Visalia, and a son, Ashton H. Warner of Richmond.

Mrs. Warner had lived here for the past three years.

The remains were prepared for burial by Undertaker Smallwood, and shipped to Visalia Saturday night, where the funeral services were held amid flowers and sadness.

The deceased was a patient sufferer and left many friends to mourn her loss.

The first part of the following address, prepared by the son of the deceased, was read by O. J. Gibbons at the Richmond home just previous to the departure for Visalia, and was repeated at the latter place, at Locey's undertaking parlors, being read by Judge J. A. Allen.

The poetic quotations were favorites of the deceased and she enjoyed hearing them read:

Marian Warner, whose lifeless form now lies before us, first saw the light of day near Burlington, Vermont, on July 30, 1829. At an early age she began teaching in the schools of her native State, which pursuit she followed for fourteen years, going in the meantime to Cook County, Illinois, in 1854, and to Decatur County, Iowa, in 1855.

In 1859 she was married to Andrew J. Warner of Leon, Decatur County, Iowa, where they lived until 1866. They then moved to Knox County, Illinois, where they resided for twenty-two years, when the rigors of the northern winters impelled them to seek the "Sunny South," locating in Benton County, Arkansas. Eight years ago the husband died, and the widow, with her sister and only surviving son and child, emigrated to California, in 1904, locating in Santa Cruz. Three years later she settled in Richmond on San Francisco Bay, where she died on the night of April 8, 1910, at the ripe old age of 80 years 8 months and 9 days.

Born near the storm-beaten shores of the Atlantic, dying by the Golden Gate on the Pacific, her long and spotless career has spanned a continent, and now we are about to transport her remains to one of the sunlit valleys of California—the far-famed Joaquin, with the lofty snow-capped peaks of the Sierras as faithful sentinels in the distance.

A more faithful wife and a more loving and devoted mother the world has never known.

Her life has been brightened with joy and pleasure, and saddened with sorrow and pain. Blissful rest, eternal peace is now her lot. She has gone to a realm where mortals may never mourn.

The Angel of Death came to her at a time when the Angel of Spring had clothed the earth in its mantle of green. Calmly, peacefully she yielded her life to the Grim Destroyer that spares neither age nor condition. But death is far preferable to life when racked with disease and pain.

"There's not a truth by wisdom taught,
There's not a feeling pure and high,
There's not a grand, inspiring thought
May not be read in a mother's eye."

"Over my heart in the days that are flown,
No love like a mother's love ever has shone,
No other worship abides and endures,
Faithful, unselfish and loving like yours,
None other can charm away pain
From the sick soul and world-weary brain.
Return from the silence so long and so deep,
And sing me to sleep, mother, sing me to sleep."

Again we are face to face with that unsolved mystery—death.

"Every cradle asks 'whence?' and every coffin 'whither?'"

"We have asked that fearful question of the hills that look eternal; of the streams that flow forever; of the stars that gleam in the fields of azure. But all are dumb."

"Is man but a bubble on the ocean's rolling wave;
Life—a gleam of light, extinguished by the grave?"

"Oh! life, like the months and years we must pass away;
Like the falling leaves we must soon decay.
From the flush of youth into manhood's prime,
We march in the endless course of time.
Then the faltering step, and life's welcome close,
The folded hands and the long repose."

The following was read at the grave: It is a cruel fate which decrees that friends and relatives must part—perhaps forever. But let us hope that sometime in the sweet by and by, and somewhere in the broad expanse of space we may meet again.

Tenderly, lovingly we lower her now in her narrow home.

"She has gone to the tongueless silence of a dreamless dust."
The lightnings may flash and the thunders roll; the tramp of armies may shake her windowless palace of rest; or the earthquake may sink her deeper into the bosom of Mother Earth, but it will be no more to her than the rustle of a leaf or the fall of a thistle down."

"Soul of the just! companion of the dead!
Where is thy home and whither art thou fled?
Did Nature light to the grave this chance-created form,
As ocean wrecks illuminate the storm,
And, when the sun's tremendous flash is o'er,
To night and silence sink forevermore?
For this hath Science searched on weary wings
By shore and sea, each mute and living thing!
Oh, star-eyed Science, hast thou wandered there
To wait us home the message of despair?
If Chance awakened (inexorable power)
This frail and feverish being of an hour,
To know Delight but by her parting smile,
And toll and wish and weep a little vain
Then melt ye elements that formed in vain
This troubled pulse and visionary brain
Fade, ye wild flowers, memorials of my doom,
And sink ye stars that light me to the tomb.
Yet half I hear the parting spirit sigh—
'It is a dread and awful thing to die!'
Mysterious worlds, untraveled by the sun,
Where time's far-wandering tide has never run—
From your unfathomed shades and viewless spheres
A warning comes, unheard by other ears.
Daughter of Faith! awake! arise, illumine
The dread unknown, the chaos of the tomb.
Melt and dispel ye spectre doubts that roll
Cimmerian darkness o'er the parting soul.
Cease every joy to glimmer on my mind,
But leave, O leave the light of Hope behind."

Again we propound the question to the Sphinx—From whence did we come, and whither are we going? And, Shall we live again and meet and know each other?
Silence for an answer.
Eternity records it.

Why didn't you tackle him?" asked the court.

"He was too big for me to lick, and I let him go. But I did the next best thing. Susie was crying somepin fierce, and I just grabbed her and was kissing away her tears when the cop came along and said I was violating the law. I didn't know what he meant, and as Susie kept on crying I kept on kissing. Then the cop stopped us."

"You and Susie may go now," said the court to Jacob. "The next time she cries give her your handkerchief—when you see a cop coming."

Knew the Calendar.

They were little girls, so small that the teacher was telling them about divisions of time, and receiving all sorts of answers to her simple questions. The little girl who lived in a boarding house was a year older than any of the others.

"We have learned that years are divided into months, months into weeks, and weeks into days," said the teacher. "Now can any one tell me how the days are divided?"

The little girl who lived in a boarding house raised her hand, and was asked to speak.

"Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, beef," she said, glibly; Friday, fish; Saturday, corn beef and beans, and Sunday, chicken."

The Final Test.

"Doctor," asked the patient, whose eyes had been undergoing treatment for a period of six months or more, "do you think that my eyes are all right now?"

"Yes," said the oculist, "I think I can assure you, Mr. Pinchbeck, that your eyes are cured. But there is one more test I should like to apply. See if you can read that at a distance of twelve or fourteen inches without blinking."

Whereupon he laid his bill before him.—Chicago Tribune.

No Use.

"You say Jones is down and out! Why, it was only a little while ago that he told me he had the key of success."

"He did, but the poor fellow wasn't able to find the keyhole."—Cleveland Leader.

Is This True?

"Why don't the common people get money?"

"Because they don't exist as a body. Every individual thinks he is slightly superior to the general run of humanity."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Entered as SECOND-CLASS MATTER June 22, 1903, at RICHMOND, CALIFORNIA, under the ACT OF CONGRESS OF MARCH 3, 1879.

SATURDAY, April 23, 1910

If you have any news, arrival or departure of friends, society or industrial news, coming events, building notes and gossip beneficial to the city, send same to the Terminal as early as possible with your signature. Your name is an indication of good faith. Pastors who interest our readers in their services, are offered space for church directory. When directory is not revised, it is put in the "hell" box with other dead matter. The neglect of the divine to change copy occasionally, explains the absence of the church bulletins for our readers. NOTICE—No contract with this paper authorized through outside parties, not agents are employed. It is always better to call to see what you want, or write a letter. Subscribers who may fail to receive their paper are requested to notify this office at once.

During the hot days the small boy would like to go to school as many times as there are hairs on tail of a Mexican dog.

POLITICAL.

When will the so called democratic press say just a few words of the sterling qualities of Mayor Gaynor of New York, the saneness of Joe Folk of Missouri, et cetera?

Hon. Geo. Searey, tax collector was in Richmond calling on a few of his best friends. The improvements since the time he moved from Richmond have amazed him. A number of people did not know the official.

Hon. S. G. Spagnoli, it is generally understood, will be one of the candidates for a county office from Richmond. Having had practical experience, and having served satisfactorily for two terms as treasurer of Amador county, and being a pioneer of Richmond, Richmond people and the people of this county will favor him. The other offices for Richmond's quota are probably auditor and coroner.

RICHARDSON GETS BOOST.

Friend W. Richardson, editor of the Daily Gazette and president of the California Press Association, could not resist the demand of over one hundred editors of representative California newspapers to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Superintendent of State Printing, even though he repeatedly refused to be a candidate for governor to satisfy their ideals.

The experience of Editor Richardson of many years as a publisher and printer has made the Gazette print shop at Berkeley a model in all of its departments and Mr. Richardson's great executive capacity is reflected in its successful operation. The Berkeley editor is not afflicted with the office seeking microbe, and never was a candidate for any office, but always preferred to act in the official capacity of a "humble" bona fide editor. He has entered the campaign on his merits and will not abuse any of opponents to win in the marathon campaign. Besides the indorsement of the California press F. W. Richardson's friends are highly elated over his splendid whole-hearted indorsement by the Berkeley Independent, which we will quote in a future issue. Everywhere the Richardson enthusiasm is spreading.

CURRY IS POPULAR.

Hon. Charles F. Curry, candidate before the primaries for the Republican nomination for governor of our great California is cutting "some ice" in Contra Costa county in which he will carry a greater vote than all competitors combined. The same word comes from Kern and Los Angeles counties and the vote in San Francisco will resemble an avalanche. The tide is coming his way and the Terminal and its many friends do not recede from its position that our present Secretary of State is very popular and has made the best official in that capacity that this state ever had. On all sides is heard the expression: "I have known Charles Curry personally for several years, and it is my intention to support him. He is my personal friend." When the Terminal printed a sketch of his career fully one hundred people called and said that was a good article in your paper about Curry and that they would work for his election for governor.

Curry is not a Lincoln Roosevelt, yet he can show all "cards and spades" for honesty and integrity; he is not a banker, yet Curry is in their estimation of his personal equation, worth 100 cents on the dollar; he is not a Democrat, yet he could muster more democratic votes than Bell, or "Tim", the "Col"; he is not an "organization" man, yet the "interests" may conclude that they may have to swallow a pill more bitter; he is familiar with labor in the forest, field and factory in every condition, and he is strong with union labor; Curry can mail rails, make worm fence and build log cabins and skin coons; can saw wood on the "q. t." can appreciate the great petroleum industry, agricultural, mining, manufacturing and commercial pursuits of California. He is thoroughly familiar with the laws of corporations. What more do the people expect in the qualifications for a governor?

Hon. Charles Sumner Young, a cousin of the Sharons, predicts an overwhelming plurality for Curry on his personal popularity alone. He is the "people's choice for governor." Keep your eye on Curry.

Eastern Contra Costa is entitled to the office of county assessor, but a movement is reported working of a combination that would skin Hon. George O. Meese out of it. Mr. Meese is an able successor to Mr. Jones.

OFFICE OF THE Assessor of Contra Costa County.

POLL TAX NOTICE

Martinez, April 6, 1910.
Notice is hereby given that the State Poll Tax of two dollars for the year 1910 is, now, due, and payable at the Assessor's office, in the Court House, or to a Deputy Assessor. Sec. 3339 of the Political Code reads as follows:

Every male inhabitant of the State over twenty-one and under sixty years of age, except paupers, insane persons and Indians, must annually pay a Poll Tax of two dollars; provided the same be paid between the

First Monday in March and the First Monday in August

Then it shall be three dollars. Sec. 3815 of the Political Code makes it the duty of the Assessor to "demand Poll Tax of every person liable therefor, and on the neglect or refusal of such person to pay, he must collect by seizure and sale of any personal property owned by such person."

Under Sections 429 and 435 every person who refuses to give his own name or the name of any person in his employ, or who in any manner obstructs the Assessor or any of his deputies in the collection of the State Poll Tax, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to a fine of $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Only those persons under twenty-one or over sixty years of age are exempt. Poll Tax must be paid on demand.

Southern Pacific is building track for electric service to Macdonald Avenue depot

Santa Fe
This road came to Richmond in 1900, before the Standard Oil refinery; expanding for wharves at Ferry Point, tunnel, viaducts, depots, round-house, shops, library, warehouses and Terminal tracks about $1,700,000. Like the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe's main depot is on Macdonald avenue and it, will be of the mission style when moved near First Street, and enlarged.

The Oakland & East Side Railway, the northern terminus of the coast division, is here and will use gasoline motors to connect for San Francisco through the Key Route.

EAST SHORE & SUBURBAN RY
—Electric cars. Local service.—

This is the best city electric railway system in the world in a city nine years old. Fare from County Line to Macdonald Ave. and Twelfth St. Richmond, only 10 cents to Point Richmond, i. e. This is building up the Avenue. Electric cars also stop at the Ward. Ten-minute car service in force from Twenty-third street on the Ave to Washington Ave. Pt. Richmond.

RICHMOND BELT RAILWAY
The Belt Line connects Richmond with the commerce of the world through the oceanic and inland shipping with Richmond as a distributing center via great overland railroads, the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe, which, by traffic arrangements, control the Belt and its wharves, each assuming separate management every alternate year. The largest vessels, about discharge and take on cargo and meet the Terminal overland railroads, have at deeper water than at San Francisco. The Belt Line also carries factory, warehouse, wharf and other employees, twice daily, via East Shore & Suburban electric cars to and from their homes in Richmond.

BIG OIL FIRE.
There was a big fire started at big Standard Oil Co. reservoir beginning at one a. m. Thursday and burned a seething mass bubbling, boiling and smoking in the style of a volcano, shooting flames hundreds of feet in the air against the funnel shaped column of smoke rising about a mile straight upward to be wafted by the counter currents of air. Some thought it was a blaze from a camp-fire of train robbers or bay pirates trying to signal to the planet Mars; but the conservative people believed it the result of oil witches who wished another cauldron. Hundreds of people watched the oil burn kept at a safe distance by direction of Col. W. S. Rheem. Workmen dug trench and built an emergency dyke to prevent disaster when the great reservoir "puked." The reservoir had a capacity of 340,000 barrels of crude oil with a layer of water at the bottom and the reservoir was nearly full with a depth of seven feet ten inches, burning at the rate of four inches an hour until 8 p. m. Thursday evening, when she puked her entire contents after the reservoir was quiet the oil was practically burned out by daylight yesterday morning. By advice of oil experts Santa Fe trains were derailed via Southern Pacific, and had the Santa Fe train passed under the volume of hot ejected oil, twice as great as a large house, the train engulfed in flaming oil would have stopped and the passengers perished. The probable loss is between $200,000 and $500,000 and the fire was the greatest in Richmond's history.

Halwick's Meat Lecture.
Tariff makes trusts, and trusts make high prices and high prices make consumers swear and bring on an array of credits. Under the conditions existing the individual retailer and the consumer must unite against monopoly which is every moment trying to put the little retailer out of business so that prices may soar beyond reach, so as to rid the combine of the storage meats. To equalize matters either do away with license on necessities or charge the trusts a stiffer license, by licensing each individual store.

Visit Halwick's market and, in a practical way, on a cash basis, he will demonstrate how you can get good fresh meat at lower cost; the demonstrations are going on every moment.

In sympathy with the worldwide decline of business, the traffic of the Suez canal fell to 3,795 vessels last year, a decline of 472, as compared with the previous year.

The Radium Institute, of Heidelberg, to be opened before the end of the year, will be the first of its kind to commence actual work, as an endowment has been secured for it.

In raising the displacement of its battleships to 25,000 tons, the United States government has produced a ship which far exceeds the largest contemporary battleships built or building of any foreign navy.

It is quite likely that the international commission will recommend the construction of a dam across the Niagara river at Buffalo to raise the level of Lake Erie. The work will cost $5,000,000.

MODERN DEVELOPMENTS.

Electric trolley cars appeared in 1890.

The Sault Ste. Marie canal was completed in 1896.

The Westinghouse air brake appeared in 1868.

The first telephones were put into operation in 1876.

Uniform car couplers were adopted by the railroads in 1893.

The Australian ballot was first used in the United States in 1888.

The mails and express companies were closed to lottery schemes in 1895.

The first great international exposition was held in Philadelphia in 1876.

The first law to prohibit liquor traffic in prohibition states was passed in 1890.

The first corporation to organize with a capital of more than a billion dollars was the United States Steel Company, which organized in 1901 with a capital of $1,100,000,000.

Still, some are dissatisfied and think things are slow and that we do not have as much or know as much as our forefathers. Others imagine that the end of inventions has been reached and that nothing remains for the coming generations to discover, but the next 500 years will probably show that what we have now is only a crude beginning.

The number of inventions and improvements that have appeared since the civil war is very large, some of the more important being elevators, barb wire fence, artificial ice, wire nails, grain elevators, hot air, hot water and steam for heating houses, asphalt and wood block pavements, large size plate glass, automatic machine guns, dynamite, sulky plows, compressed air drills for mining, steel safes and bank vaults, wireless telegraph and wireless telephone.

Bowers—Did you say that Jones lost his money in a bank? Powers—Yes; he put it in a faro bank.

Gas Man—Your bill for the month is ten dollars. Consumer—Holy smoke! You must think that I own a balloon.

Diner—There are certainly brave sandwiches. Waiter—Why? Diner—I can't find a yellow streak in them.

Guessing the Age of It.

Men of science differ greatly in their calculations. As an illustration, the case of Niagara falls might be cited.

How old is this famous cataract? To this fascinating question geologists have given replies varying by tens of thousands of years. At first it was estimated that Niagara river came into existence, through changes in the level of the land around the Great Lakes, about 55,000 years ago. Later this was reduced to only 12,000 years.

Charles Lyell, the celebrated geologist, increased the estimate to 35,000 years; but more recently others have lowered it to about 9,000 years. The latest estimate, however, places the age of the river at 32,000 years, and that of the cataract at 31,000 years. It is calculated also that many thousands years ago the height of the falls was 420 feet.

Drawings in British Isles.

A return issued recently as a parliamentary paper, shows the lives lost by wreck, drowning, or other accidents at sea, and in rivers and harbors in British sea-going merchant ships during the years 1891 to 1908 inclusive. The total number of passengers, masters, and seamen who lost their lives in 1908 was 1,139, the number of casualties at sea being 722 and in rivers and harbors 417. With the exception of the years 1906 and 1904, this total is the lowest recorded during the past 18 years, the most fatal year being 1894, when the total loss of life was 3,971, viz., 1,874 masters and seamen and 1,197 passengers. The number of masters and seamen who lost their lives was 1,047, viz., 633 at sea and 414 in rivers and harbors. The number of passengers drowned was only 92. This number included 33 passengers lost from the S. S. Sardinia of Liverpool. Lives lost in yachts and fishing vessels are not included in the return.

A Substitute for Meat.

The thrifty housewife will find in porridge an excellent substitute for meat. A cup of wheat kernels should be soaked in hot water for 12 hours, then passed through a meat chopper or grinder and boiled slowly for an hour or more. Then serve with sugar and cream or a fruit preserve. It is more nourishing than meat. A cupful of wheat grains will make a hearty meal for three persons and as the cost of a quart of wheat is only two cents this amount will feed a family of seven or eight for breakfast.

The American consul is a very popular and useful person, especially if there happens to be a celebration of any sort in his city. Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, in her pleasant book, "Sun and Shadow in Spain," tells of the representative of the United States at Madrid during the strenuous days that preceded the wedding of the king of Spain. A friend dropped into his office to see him one day.

"Listen to this letter," said the consul.

"Dear Sir. My daughter and I arrive in Madrid on Saturday morning. As I hear the city is full on account of the wedding fete, I must trouble you to engage rooms for us. They must be in a stylish but not too expensive house. We wish to go to the wedding, the ball at the palace and all the other entertainments. If you should be unable to secure us invitations, kindly ask the ambassador to attend to the matter. Yours truly, Mrs. Emerald Green."

Just as he stopped reading, a telegram was brought in by Pepe, the cherub office boy. The consul sighed again as he read it out loud:

"Please wire answer to my letter immediately, stating address of rooms. Am sending large trunk to your care."

"E. G."

"Friends of yours?" asked the visitor.

"Never heard of them," said the good-natured consul. "Anyway, it's all in the day's work."

WANTED, EXPERT STAMP LICKER

Drug Clerk Becomes Wearisome and He Protests Against Licking.

If you are in search of employment in a Milwaukee drug store you must be a stamp lick. The unofficial word has gone forth among owners of drug stores that lickless individuals in search of work are to be turned down cold.

That the ability to lick stamps is one of the prime requisites of a nifty drug clerk is just becoming known. Time was when Milwaukeeans licked their own stamps, stuck them on their packages or letters, and that was all there was to it. No more; the clerk must lick the stamp that he sells. It is a part of the bargain. True, it seems rather hard on the stamp deal, but facts are facts and cannot be reasoned around.

Ordinarily the new wrinkle of stamp licking is not noticed, but at such times as Christmas and New Year, when the tongues of the overworked clerks become weary from overmuch contact with glue, a wall goes up and the new order comes under the public's observation.

However, there have been drug clerks within the last few days who positively refused to lick any more stamps, says the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin. Their refusal is made on the ground that if they should overdo the operation it would seriously interfere with their speech. Many of the clerks who refused to lick stamps were women, though a number of men were in the striking ranks.

"It's simply awful," declared one clerk in discussing the situation. "A woman comes in here and buys a bunch of stamps. She has her letters in her hands. Sometimes there are 11 or 15. You give her the stamps. She counts them out, a stamp to a letter, and politely hands them back to you with the demand, 'Lick 'em, please'—and you have to do it to hold your job."

Hint of a drug clerks' union, composed of members banded together under the sacred promise to never lick another stamp, has been heard, but until the present time the movement is so small that it has not created interest even among the clerks themselves.

Meanwhile the licking demand is made and stamps are being assiduously licked.

Trials of a Lecturer.

A well known Englishwoman lecturer tells some stories at her own expense.

"I was," she says, "on a tour through the provinces, and one night as I appeared on the platform in a small town the chairman introduced me to my audience in the following way: 'You have heard of Mr. Gladstone, the Grand Old Man. Let me now introduce to you the grand old woman.' This was intended as a sincere compliment.

"On another occasion a bluff old farmer who boasted of his ability to look on all sides of a question announced me as follows: 'This lady's come here to talk about her rights. She's hired the hall herself, and so she's got a right to be here, and if any of you don't like what she's got to say you've got an equal right to walk out in the middle of it.'"
